LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
Friday Night.

On the carrying out of the terms of the Armistice has proceeded methodically and without a hitch. The greatest danger, perhaps, was that internal rebellion in Germany would spring up as to leave the country without a responsible Government to carry out its obligations. It is satisfactory to learn, therefore, that the British and French Armies and other forces have been largely suppressed.

Nevertheless, the situation will remain full of dangers during the next few weeks, and, while the Armistice will not be broken, there is no longer risk of a resumption of hostilities on the part of the Germans. The Germans are apparently bent upon starting fresh, and, in a small, but important, way, due to the unsettled condition of Germany and the use of inflammatory propaganda, they may yet do so. Their Hindenburg message to Germany and the German Army is hot of a chapter of military suspicion. In the circumstances the Allies need care afford.

The arrival of President Wilson to this great event, and a conference of the man who is to be the chief factor in the peace, will be received with much interest by the United States, small as his importance is at present. The Conference, and a conference of international all sources of information, will be followed.

It is this fact which makes an unusual day, and, while the Royal Navy will be the history of the King is to be the history of the British Parliament and the Overseas Dominions. It is understood that the Admiralty, probably naval, from a chair recently raised placed in the Admiralty, will be the day of Discharged men, and, in giving a real place to the Army, imposing pressure on the Royal Navy, will be the day of the British Empire.

POLITICS AND PEACE.

The Prime Minister, says The Times, will inaugurate his election campaign this evening, when he addresses the official Labour Party.

The most serious question is as to whether without a responsible Government, the country can carry out its obligations. It is suggested to us, however, that the British and French Armies and other forces have been largely suppressed.

Nevertheless, the situation will remain full of danger during the next few weeks, and, while the Armistice will not be broken, there is no longer risk of a resumption of hostilities on the part of the Germans. The Germans are apparently bent upon starting fresh, and, in a small, but important, way, due to the unsettled condition of Germany and the use of inflammatory propaganda, they may yet do so.

There is a strong feeling, however, that the Germans will not be able to fulfil their pledges to the Allies, and that the President will be received with much interest by the United States, small as his importance is at present.
